Intimations. 1HE following Circular prohibiting the exportation of Rice and Paddy from b is published for general information. WM. ADAMSON. Acting Stames Consul. place Hongkong, 26th January, 1865.

TRANSLATION Of the Notification of the Siamese Government probabiling the experiation of Rice and Paddy for seven Lamar months, commencing with farmery 25th. 1865, and ending on the 20th of August should there then be a feir prospect of a good incoming crop Otherwise to be continued another year. Ilis Excellency Chow Paya Paya Krang, Minister of Foreign Affairs, begg to notify the Consuls of the various Treaty Powers that the Rollings Authorities of Siam, having unanimously consulted appeller, in struct me to notify you that, in the year of the Rat Sixth of the Decade, the 1 the of the Reign of His tions of the West were overflewed, the chier plants tions auffored from drought. The people who cultiunte lhe rice fields in teme insunces, tealise luc-lember in some insunces operatents; and in some instances the Rice is a complete failure. Monied men under excitement have been having up vice till it has risen to two teals per backet. It has now fallen to 12 of a tigal per backet. Paddy however, is still firm, 60 to 76 t cals per covan for good or in-fer or. The price of rico does not decrease. It is dear all through the provinces, and in the Capital. The people of the Previnces, the poor and the embarrassed, who have n tibe means to purchase grain must seek in the forests wild yams, and gather bamhoo needs to est instead of rice, sometimes they seek other substances and mix with rice for food. All are sufferers to a great extent.

The present has re ched a crisis. which the Kng. lish call famine, but which the Siamese call rice dear destitution. Should the experiation of rice not be closed, the poor people will murmuringly cry out the contracting powers have matually agreed upon provisions for the relief of the destitute, but the Stardians of the Treaties in behalf of His Majesty the King, and the Consuls in behalf of Foreign countries, do not devise the means for the relief of the poor as provided for in those Treaties. The 6th Article of the English Tracky, says

Whenever a scarcity may be apprehended of Sall Rice and Fish, the Stamese Government reserved themselves the right of prohibiting, by public proclamation, the expertation of these articles. The 6th Article of the agreement appended to the English Treate, says :- "That a mouth's botice On the South and East side thereof on the shall be given by the Siamete Authorities to the Consul, prim to the enforcement of the prohibition. ready purchased, may do so even after the prohibition comes in force." The 20th Article of the French Treaty says, con cerning, rice, fish and salt:- Toutefois le Gouvernement Sinniols se réserve la faculté d'interdire la sortie du sel, du ris et du poisson pour le cas ou il y auruit lieu d'apprenender une discite dans le Royaume de Sism. Mais, cette interdiction, qui devra tee jublice un mois à l'avance, ne saurait avoir auceun effet retroactif. Noanmoins, les négociants Français nevront avertir l'autorite des achats qu'ils auront faits auterieurement a la prohibition. Likewise in the Treaties which other countries have made, the stipulations are similar. Sech are the stipulations of the Trenties. The Siamese Go- | Parquite, $1. vernment desire the prosperity of the country, and po ceive that if the experiation of rice is not forbidden, rice bolders, on perceiving the paddy is dearwill convert it into cargo and table rice, will sell it to the ships, and leave only enough for personal. consumption. Thuse who have no rice, will suffer and having no money to purchase, will combine and consume the vice which should be kept for seed.

When the time for cultivating arrives, there will be no seed from other countries, it will not be serviceable as the soil of countries differ. If the seed grain is greatly exhausted, though there should be much rain, the fields cannot be cultivated to their full extent. Rice is the great article of export, and both parties will mutually lose; and the detriment to the fields will ted, be prolonged. Hence it is requested to close the export of rice, as per Treaties. If the Consuls have orinions on the subject, they will please assist in devising means that will be beneficial to the poor. and advantageous to the merchants for the future There was a similar distress in England many years ago. Flour for bread could not be purchased from other countries, the potato crop was a failure, and men died in multitudes. The Plenipolentiaries of the different countries, anticipating distress, consented to the making of these treaty clauses for the mutual advantage of both parties. I now beg the lists of purchased Rice, and notify you that in this Second month, year of the month, if it is perceived that the vice-plants in the fields, are in good condition; the carly rains, and the mild'e rains natural, and the prohibition may be removed. a proclamation will be rent to you announceing the fact. If the rains are not abundant and the ther year. With reference to the present prohibition ed Metropolitan and world wide celebrity. when the exportation is once suspended, there will be no intraction, the vice cannot be open for exportation till the spenfied time. Your merchants and traders, who have purchase rice to whatever amount, will please send to statements of the same, for the information of authorities. who will be sent to investigate the matter. So that when the prohibition takes effect, if they wish to export they may be allowed to do so to the amount specified as per stalement. And we beg you to forbid their purchasing beyond the amount stated in their accounts. Let merchants seek vessels chough to export to the full extent the amount spec fied in their statements. Should the rice become chesp and the me chants purchase and store and they ask permission to export it before the specified time it. cannot be allowed. The present emergency. In the second place I call one of the nominees of Tseng-kwo-fan, who leads the party whose influence is on the wane, and against whom there is the suspicion of ambition. In the next place, although Le holds two Imperial Com. missions-one from the Foreign Board, and the other from the Cabinet, still the powers conferred only apply to the Province of Kiangsu, of which he it Governor (and which is one of the three of which Teeng-kwo-fan, is the Governor General), and it would be an innovation beyond precedent or contemplation to disputch him with such powers to Fuhkien, for the government, of which the Governor General of that and of the adjoining Province is in diplomatic parlance held responsible. The whole onus of the Taiping invasion of Fuhprovince, who have had no experience whatever in modern warfare, and honce it is that they re- ing wear in great variety.

Imperial agristance will be afforded ; but that is not likely to happen until Mandarin exactions shall have made the Fuhkien people disaffeeted and rebellious. But a new and a very grave difficulty has to be faced by the Mandarius. It is superfluous to state in this place, that through the active interference of British forces the Taipings were expelled from active interference, the rich provinces of Chekinng and Kiangen, certainly, if not all the provinces South of the Yangstze, would have been in the Peking, ever do irous to serve the Imperial cause, endcayoured to force on the Prince Kung some aystem of a litery ever tisation, by dictating the terms on which British subjects might be pormitted to serve in the Mandarin ranks. The Prince replied to the tenor and effect, that British subjects in Imperial pay were Chinese ser-yants, and must exclusively obey the orders of the Mandarins-and that British troops in British pay must in like manner exclusively obey the orders of their government, who might either cause them to remain in China to protect British interests, or withdraw thom as might be deemed most expedient. But His Highness seemed to repudiate the principle that the Imperial Government was responsible for the safety of British lite and property within its jurisdiction. The reply was as unfriendly, repellent, and suicidal a Gariba rebuff, as was ever administered in diplomatic Boots.

Such a tone of correspondence could hardly be otherwise than extremely unpalatable to the British government, who naturally would under such circumstances study exclusively the national intercets confided to them. They have seen that the Maritime Custom revenue, which they have at such pains secured to the Mandarin government, instead, of being a source of strength became a source of weakness, for the revenue thus derived being relied on for the wants of the court, and the extraordinary requirements of the army, the regular sources of revenue were allowed to go by the cose end, and the reins of administration became abandoned accordingly. And now, when the Customs duties amount to a sum which prior to the system of foreign inspectorate, would have been deemed fabulous, it is relied on for so many accessities, that it is absurbed in anticipation without in the least producing the effect intended. And in the same manner the British Governpient have seen the radial protection extended to the open ports, and the presence of British forces stationed on the spot, abused and also made a source of weakness instead of strongth. For the Mandarine relying on this sure mantle of protection, (which also secured to them both free communications and the customs revenue) were relieved of the apprehension of destruction, and consequently indulged in apathy, venelity, and impracticability to the top of their bont. And although the efforts to force on them a system of military organisation proved both successful and effective so long as their danger was imminent, still on the rebellion being driven back to where it could and did recover itself, the Mandarins not only relapsed into the lethargy from which they had been aron- h
